Capabilities and behaviors for the next generation of organizations

Business Agility, as a term, is both inspirational and aspirational. Who doesn't want a business that can effortlessly respond to the changing world? Yet, it still means vastly different things for different people.

We created the Domains of Business Agility to bring clarity to the overall field that is business agility. To make sense of what it means to have agility in an organization. And to do so in a way that is accessible and usable by as many people as possible.

Explore the Domains of Business Agility in our Library, or read the complete Domains collected in e-book format.

It's free to download and share.

NATIONAL BANK JUST GETTING STARTED

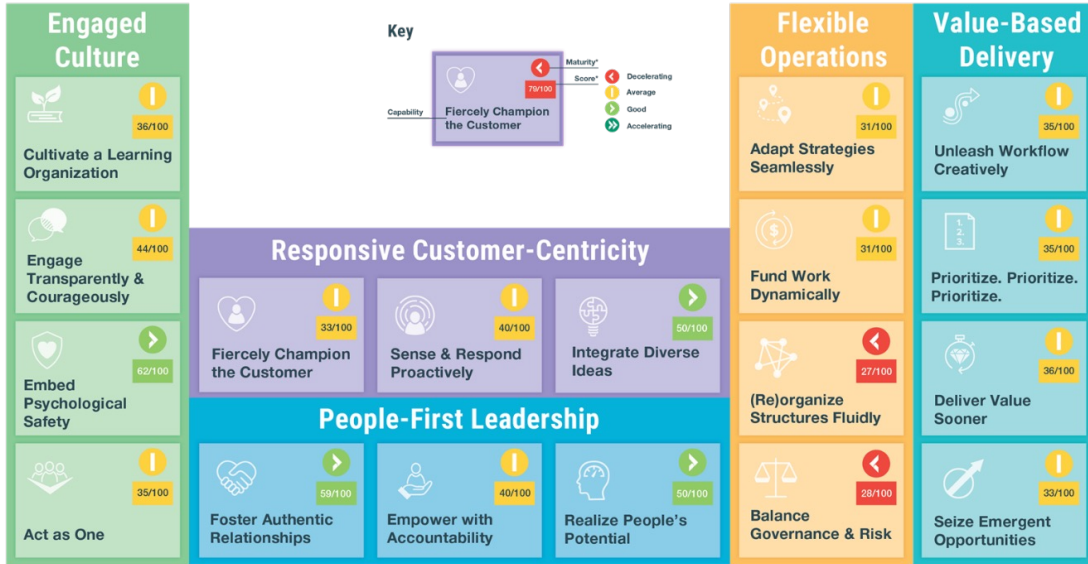

This is a snapshot from a mid-sized national bank who was just getting started on their business agility journey. Overall, this was a very immature organization with most behaviors pulling back against the transformation activities.

Summary of Capabilities

This organization demonstrated a low level of business agility across the organization in both the behavioral and business systems evaluation.

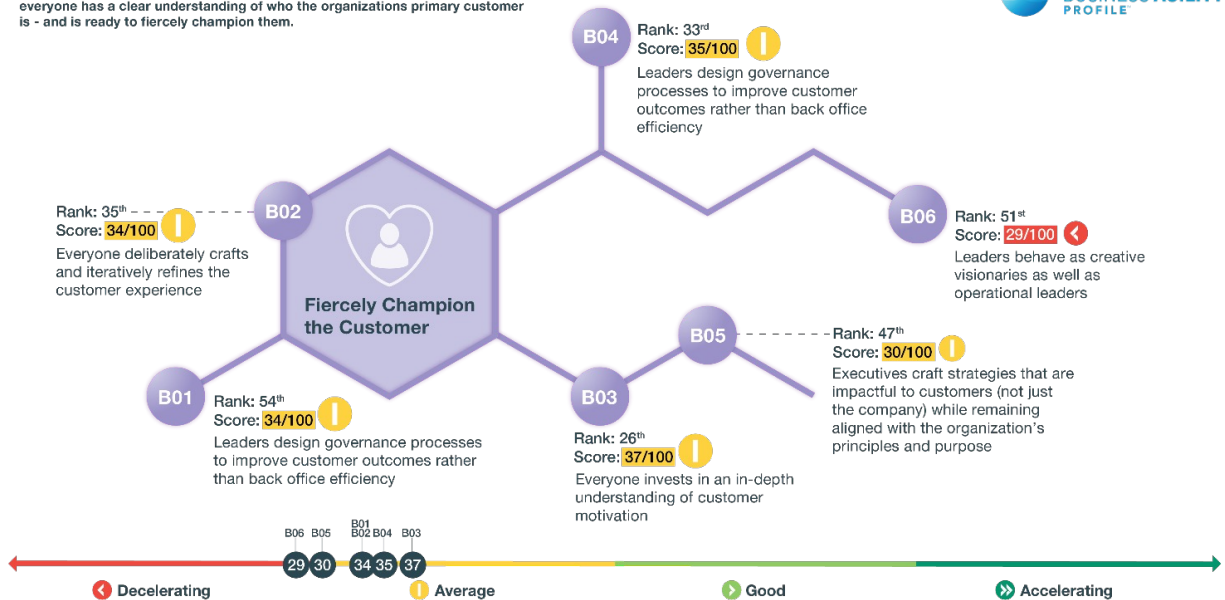

However, their investment in key capabilities, such as Embed Psychological Safety, has established a high-readiness for ongoing advancement.

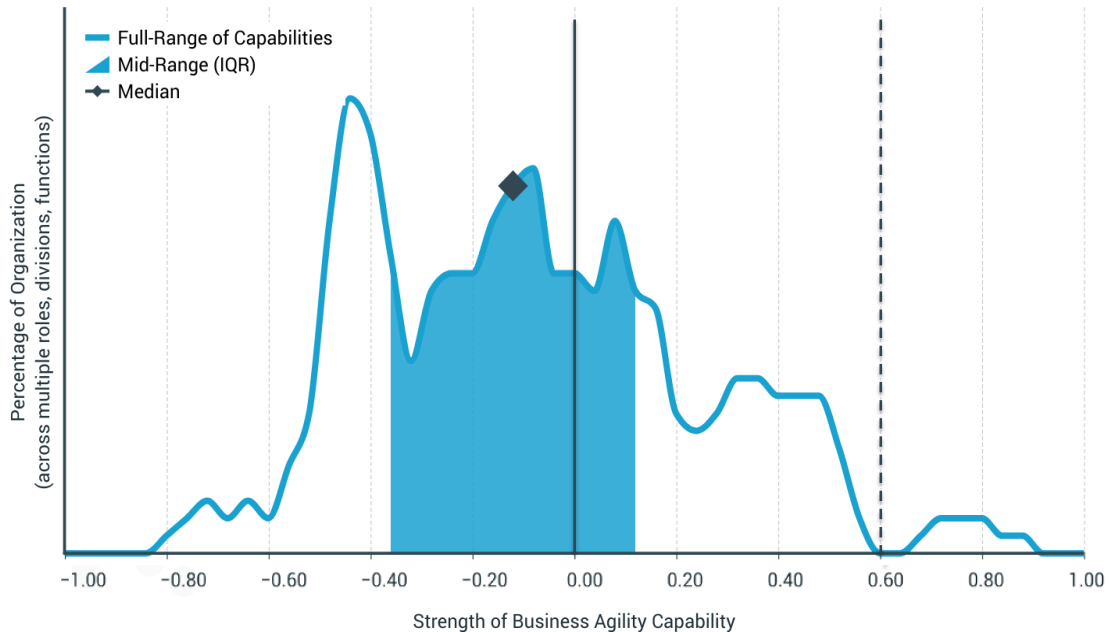

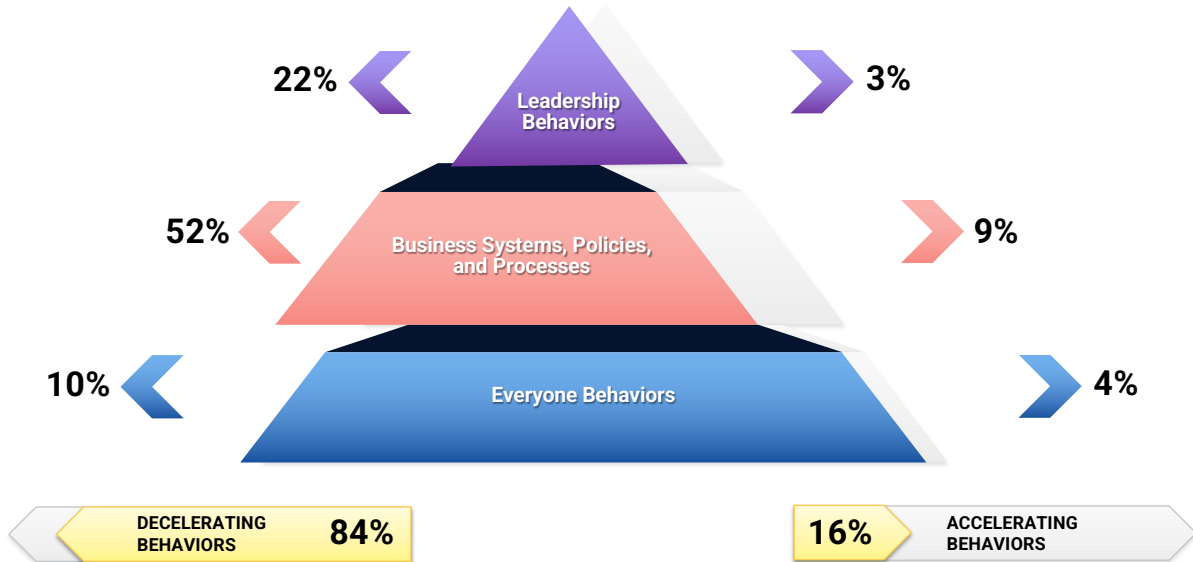

Fiercely Champion the Customer

Who are you fighting for? A core capability of business agility is making sure everyone has a clear understanding of who the organizations primary customer is - and is ready to fiercely champion them.

AUTOMOTIVE MANUFACTURER 2-4 YEARS IN

This is a snapshot from a large automotive manufacturer based in Europe. This organization has been investing in their business agility journey for the last 2-4 years. Overall, this organization had created a good foundation for their journey with most behaviors neutral towards transformation activities.

Summary of Capabilities

This organization demonstrated a moderate level of business agility across the organization in both the behavioral and business systems evaluation.

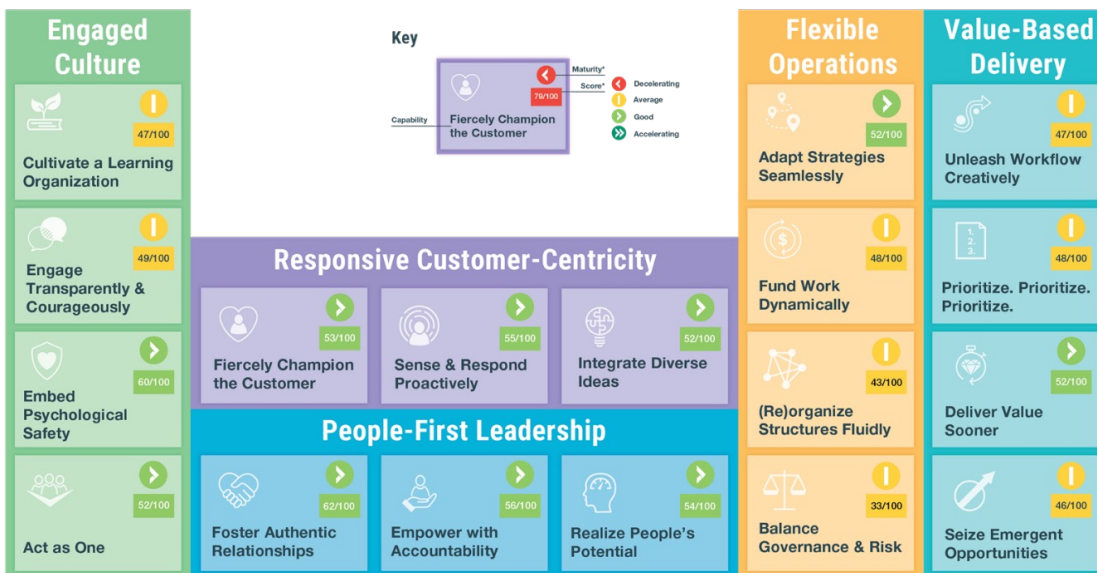

The strongest behaviors are mostly within the People-First Leadership domain and related leadership behaviors, whereas the capabilities that require the most attention are those within the Flexible Operations domain. This is fairly normal to see – transformation of governance-related behaviors are usually the last to be invested in.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AGENCY 5-8 YEARS IN

This is a snapshot from a large federal government agency who has been investing in business agility for 5-8 years. Overall, this was a very mature organization with a large number of positive business agility behaviors established and supporting the transformation activities.

Summary of Capabilities

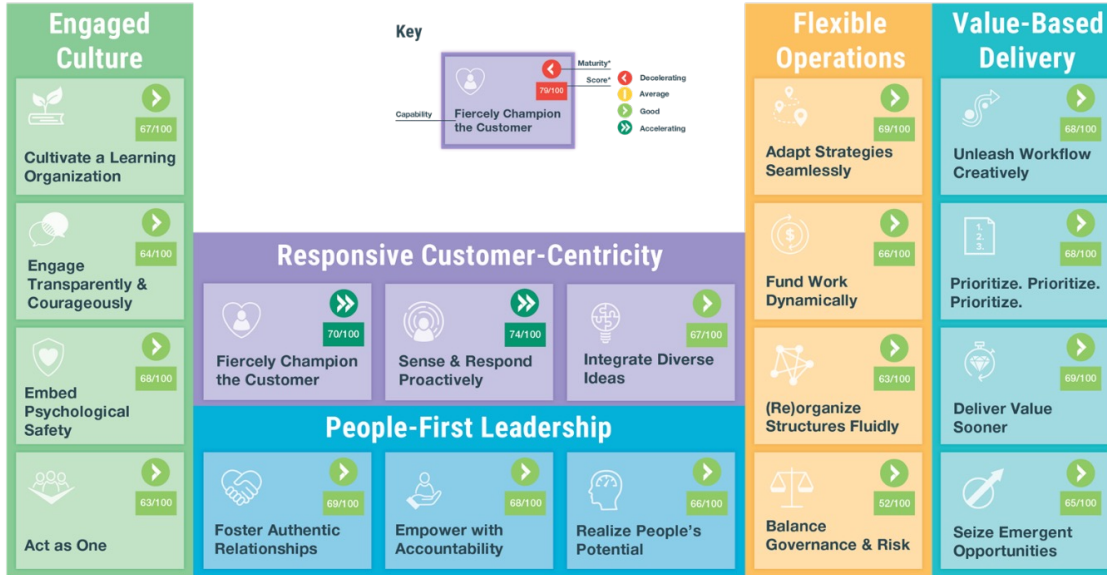

The focus for this organization should be on continuous improvement of the successes and progress made so far. In other words, reinforcing and improving existing business agility behaviors and practices.

Continue to invest in transforming the relevant HR, Finance, and operational governance, policies, and procedures to support the target state behaviors.

I will ensure that everyone eligible in my organization has taken or is enrolled in a two-day Agile Fundamentals course in the next 90 days.

I will create and implement an action plan to execute on the six team-non-technical practices and track it in my staff meetings.

I will support the mandate that projects worked on by my teams use the six non-technical practices by the end of 1Q 2013.

I will give my teams and myself the time and space needed to apply the practices learned in the training – we will make this the new BAU!

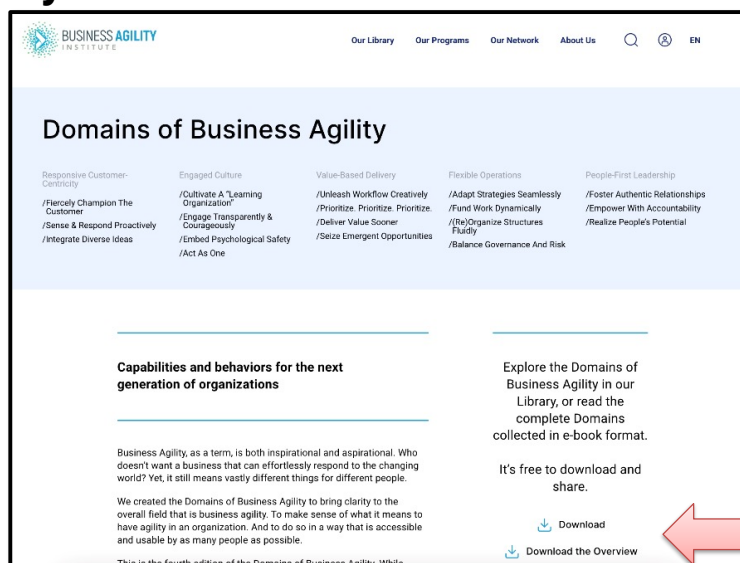

I will model the desired behavior of an agile mindset, including:

- Stopping multi-tasking and rewarding it
- Prioritizing only one "#1": changing our culture of "and"
- Talking more, sending less email
